

THE GENERAL VERSUS THE RANTING PAWN

YAHWEH IS LEADING:

Ranting pawns try to convince everyone that what they say they heard from Yahweh is true. They want to try to prove it instead of waiting on Yahweh. I don't need you to go and say you did hear Yahweh to gain validation. Let Yahweh stand.

Every battle will have casualties. Every battle will have pawns. An organized battle will have a general, a strong leader, whether centered for good or ill, who will install a measure based on loyalty and, in most cases, obedience from those who are under. A general rarely comes to the frontline while the heat of the battle is taking way. A general sends out the force, not trying to take a stance in the battle as if a part of the force.

Let Me show you what a ranting pawn would do. See how I am showing you what they voted for: someone who would give them what they want. And isn't that going back to the days when there was no leader, and everyone did what was right in their own eyes? And what the ranting pawn would do is take the position of leader but never take the brunt of the repercussions for how they lead. They always use a scapegoat, including humans or establishments.

Remember that day in January a few years ago? A leader who could not take his loss caused those loyal to him to think that he was in the trenches with them, in effect, making them a scapegoat, telling them that he felt their pain and that he was with them. But look at what he was: one who gave the people a way to rebel against the core governmental structure itself.

Now, I told everyone from a message that went into the spirit realm that both current running plans in this government have an evil way. Rules can be overruled based on who pushes the house itself. And usually, it is not the actual leader, the figurehead, who pushes the house (the standard of the governmental order). Look at how Hitler governed, one with deep evil traits, yet he did not go into the trenches. He governed through using restrictions based on horrible standings. He coerced an army to stand and take on evil behavior based on a fear-driven relationship. A great general, one of the vilest placements was Hitler, but he still is of a lower governing strength than the coming human antichrist.

The antichrist will be a great general, not a ranting pawn, and the antichrist will carry a hoard of Satan's lower demons. And what comes with a great general is negotiation and diplomacy.

Let Me show you what I see with these social speakers. A majority of them are ranting pawns. They are so full of Satan's way of pride that they cut people off in their speech when they have meetings. They are rude, and those willing to deal with them tend to beg them to let them have a say.

The general versus the ranting pawn.

Look what happened on that fateful day that January. Standing there on the state capitol and the perimeter of the nation's headquarters represented a nation begging for a general who would show them the way of conceding with dignity and honor. But no, the leader turned that moment into a form of deflection, dividing the nation within, making it one side against the other, a political war.

And here is what Yahweh sees.

I see no general that you have chosen. And what you will get is someone who rants. And what you will get is someone who will make you think you will get what you need. What should have taken place: The baseline of the ranting pawn should have been removed. No governmental order should have chosen that plan again; rather, there should have been a completely new way, a different republican, a fresh one, who carried an ethical standard worthy of honor but noted as a general. The new way should have been a leader who stands with the truth based on diplomacy and a generalized ethical baseline, who is not necessarily a Christian but understands honor, trust, and diplomatic ways of speaking.

The laws of negotiation and diplomacy with an honorable ethical baseline would have been noteworthy. You will see.

Are you getting it? Republican doesn't equal Christian, nor does it say that every Democrat is going to the Hell. Are you getting it? There are two evil standings, yet the value of what is offered between both is noted.

Here is what a general does: steer.

A ranting pawn brings hype and goes by how others make them feel. They gauge their words based on whether someone likes them. And they make sure to spurn the people, disregarding them as their own weapon to hurt the other side and divide the structure of the house itself.

So, what you have in this current season is a ranting pawn who will use his followers as weapons and keep his hands free, always looking like a savior. But this leader is what you wanted.

And how would you make this situation turn and bring fruitful advances based on diplomacy and honor? The same way you would deal with a nation-level leader would be how you would engage social media wannabe leaders who sway with what their followers want them to turn into.

What does Yahweh want:

Say what you actually plan to say, but mean it.

Stop being two-faced, promising what you cannot give.

Some side with a person because they are on your team. If you only go by what the team stands with, find someone better who you can mold to the standards of your team.

The Church should not take on the ranting traits of a pawn. The Church must turn and stand with Yahweh. I do not weigh how others treat you. You may have dealt with painful rejection. Never should how hurt you are hinder your way from offering negotiation and diplomacy when Yahweh yields it.
